BOILEAU

THERE is no American artist of the day whose pictures of girls arouse more admiration than those of Mr. Philip Boileau. Wherever a Boileau girl shows her pretty face people stand and gaze at it in rapt attention. It is interesting to find out, if possible, why this is. The Boileau girl is very different from the type which is generally found in recent illustration. Perhaps there has been an excessive tendency to represent the American girl as staid, stilted, imperious, sometimes arrogant. The Boileau girl is sweet, delicate, tender, feminine, sensitive.

Observe the examples of Boileau's work reproduced on this page. See how well they illustrate the qualities mentioned. The picture of the young girl with upturned face is so sweet and tender that it seems like a memory of a dead sweetheart. The girl with the brown veil and the yellow flowers is called by her creator "The Autumn Girl." Her face is away from contact with the crisp autumnal breeze, but her eyes express yearning affection rather than delight in rough outdoor life. Even more tender is the expression of the exquisitely delicate Winter Girl. Her beautiful, wide-open eyes are filled with sympathy for all the sorrows of humanity. Mr. Boileau, in fact, has succeeded in creating a woman with a soul.

Philip Boileau was born in Quebec, Canada, of a French father and an American mother. He is thoroughly American in feeling, and is prouder of the fact that he is a grandson of Senator Thomas H. Benton and a nephew of General John Charles Fremont, "the Pathfinder," than of his remote descent from an illustrious French poet. His early childhood was spent in the United States. He received a thorough art education abroad, but only took up painting as a profession six years ago.

How Discreet "Miss Hello" Protects the "400"

Like a Warship Captain in His Conning Tower, Knowing All the Ins and Outs of the Social Battle, She Sits at the Private Switchboard in Her Employer's Town or Country House With the Right Answer in the Proper Tone of Voice for Each Inquirer.

"HELLO" with a cold, non-committal intonation, when the butler is suspected of having rung up to ask about his bill.

"Hello" with a well-bred but doubtful intonation when the voice is unfamiliar.

"Hello" is smooth, soft, inquiring tones when "Central" has announced that Lord Beaudes would like to speak to Mrs. Knickerbocker van Spuyten.

This marvel among priestesses of the telephone switchboard has responded to the call of progress. She is the sublimated "hello girl" graduated from "Central," to serve by special appointment to the "400," the staid between the telephone transmitter and the august mistress of the town or country mansion of the socially truly great. She is a born respecter of persons, and she never makes mistakes.

Over the telephone some women are appreciable, some are affable and some are arrogant. This is not so much a manifestation of birth and breeding as it is of temperament and habit. But the day you could find this out for yourself by "feeling up" anyone of New York's most exclusive antechamber has passed.

The telephone and telegraph have lost a great deal of the extraordinary importance they used to have. For many years after the introduction of the telegraph, a man dreaded to send a telegram home for fear of the effect the return envelope might have upon his family. The same with the telephone. Until lately the ring of the bell or the office boy's announcement, "Mr. Butler on the wire," warranted breaking into a private office and interrupting the most serious conversations; while a personal visit would have left the caller cooling his heels outside the door of that same private office until the conference was over.

Now with the familiarity due to increased use and the reduction of charges, a telegram causes no more excitement than a letter. You wire your wife, "Meet me at the fountain," without fear of an attack of heart failure on the part of the recipient, or the breathless gasp, "Who's dead?"

In the past the most exclusive society queen would allow herself to be summoned by the telephone, even away from the reception of her guests. Let the gracier personally, naturally he would await her convenience; but let him telephone and the sharp pang of the telephone bell was as an instantly peremptory summons.

For the last few years the tremendous and inevitable increase in the use of the telephone has necessitated the introduction of the "hello girl" as a means of controlling the flow of communication. The "hello girl" is a woman who sits at a switchboard, receiving calls from the public and directing them to the appropriate person or department. She is a woman of great tact and discretion, and she is able to handle the most delicate and difficult situations with ease and grace.

"Thanks to the sublimated 'Hello Girl' as part of her domestic establishment, Mrs. Van Spuyten, at ease in her boudoir, may know absolutely that the telephone instrument on her inlaid table will leave her in peace unless the case is urgent to her."

hermoneous scheme of decoration, as we have learned to do with plans.

Before long Mrs. Clarence T. Barney's magnificent Venetian hall, fit to receive a Doge, must have a switchboard of porphyry and colored marbles; or in Mrs. J. Hargrett Crane's dainty rooms, cool and pastel tinted to the most exquisite style of Louis XV., a Whistler evocation, with Boucher panels.

Within the walls of Mrs. John Jones Kane's, where the chaste elegance of the Empire style forms a background, this center of communication would be made of white and gold.

The Renaissance is a favorite style for many New Yorkers of refined and cultivated tastes. Mrs. Charles R. Alexander and Mrs. Orme Wilson, among them, and for them, as plans, bookcases and sideboards have been constructed on lines of Renaissance tradition, so the switchboard must be transformed from utilitarian plainness into a decorative construction and a thing of beauty.

Caught and Tamed Her.

But the switchboard necessitates an operator. The same swift functional adaptability that recognizes this business lastingly as a household necessity has found no trouble in catching, taming, training and turning into a harmonious side the much-abused "hello girl" of domestic life.

From a Baty, as the dainty, white-capped, trained nurse of our day to the Baty Gump and Baty Pige of fifty years ago, is the fittingly direct, discreet mistress of cards and plugs and switches to the "Mama" of the station, with her gum and hair pompadour, her exasperating carelessness and her curtaining tact.

Here is a new field for the employment of cultured young women. The switchboard calls not for the servant type, but demands training, education and experience. The trained nurse, the governess, the secretary need not disdain to admit to their sisterhood this out-of-the-way young lady, who, with tact, discretion, courtesy and the accent of refinement, serves her employer in manifold ways.

In moving to this new stage the young woman undergoes a more businesslike and appropriate garb. Presumably, she is a dark and trim as a bird, with immaculate cuffs and collar. Her behavior is far less as the laws of the Stedie and Persius govern her new career; but she must have one new secret: she must be able to "jolly" over her wires, so to speak, no "Miss Maud."

Alert, amiable, adaptable herself, she soon learns to recognize voices and be prepared with the manner appropriate for each. Always impersonal, official, she must differentiate between the polite, the chilly and the angry. She must have one manner for the grocer and the coal man and another for the visiting English nobleman.

Just as the well-trained butler or maid can convert the caller's austerities into an especially welcome one, a subtle dexterity the master's address is known in the servant's hall, so Miss Hello learns to distinguish favor and disdain with courteous grace. She is able to take the right way to each of a dozen applicants. In her tone and accent may have the possibilities of a social tact.

Thanks to the sublimated "hello girl" in part for her domestic establishment, Mrs. Van Spuyten, at ease in her boudoir, may know absolutely that the telephone instrument on her inlaid table will leave her in peace unless the case is urgent to her.

Inevitably at the switchboard sits the calm, clear-eyed operator, whose business it is to know all the ins and outs of the family predilections and prejudices.

MRS. CHARLES B. ALEXANDER.

The bell rings. She answers in a voice perfectly colorless.

"Hello!" And the distant voice says: "Mrs. Broadacres would like to speak to you."

"Mrs. CHARLES Broadacres." The girl's voice is still perfectly colorless.

"Oh, no," Mrs. PETER Broadacres.

Now there are complicated social reasons why the mistress, up to her boudoir, would like to meet instantly any overture from a plebeian social ladder, and equally complex reasons why she should not. Mrs. Peter, of the same family, are to be discouraged. Miss Hello at the switchboard understands all these reasons as she answers in the fullest confidence of an unrepentant child over the wires.

What an evolution from the grim-voiced operator, whose "Goo!" and "Waiting!" have brought strong men to tears! The self-controlled business-like young woman is of such refinement of manner that she is not out of harmony with the house.

"Greeting, devastating and in my lady's chamber," she the wires from the dashboard where she sits like the captain of a warship in his conning tower, with her much upon the pulse, the machinery of the whole house.

At her touch Tuscany and Lorraine are within call from cellar to bedroom. Thanks to the shield of her protecting bell in Mrs. Van Spuyten's boudoir, she is able to receive without further parry and mildew, what answered in the fullest confidence of an unrepentant child over the wires.

What a mounting of letters it implies when Mrs. Hello must assume responsibility and authority, and remain her mistress that Lord and Lady Angler desire to be called in her absence, and that she has ordered the carriage for five, for this is a call that must be returned before noon, the economy of to-day.

down if one is to live up to the etiquette of royalties, ambassadors and high officials.

She must never forget the distinction her mistress desires to observe, say, between the latest immigrant and social climber from the West, with newly an assumed "read," and his more fortunate compatriot, whose railroad or political influence is deemed of value to the head of the house.

Miss, of Beaux, Mh., may be one to be braved so gallantly that he is never aware of the process.

The Important Influence of the Directoire Costume on the Modern Dress.

All Manner of Brocaded and Pompadoured Silks and Satins Employed in Directoire Coats and Dresses; Directoire Gowns Are Smartest When Made of Very Soft Satins and Heavy Crepe de Chines. The Unmodified Directoire Gown Makes a Laughable Figure of the Modern Woman, with Her Energetic Motions. The Most Fashionable and Becoming Directoire Gowns Are Made with Many Modifications.

A—Smart Modified Directoire Gown, Embracing Empire Features.

B—Danish Blue Satin Gown, With Vent of Embroidered Lace.

C—Stock Bodice of Matinee Lace, With Greek Pattern of Satin on Skirt.

D—Chiffon Velvet Gown with "Jump-up" Bodice.

E—Modified Directoire Coat With V Shaped Front of Bead Embroidered Lace.

THE influence of the Directoire period upon dress is very marked upon our newest models of fashionable gowns. These picturesque Directoire styles are very smart indeed if becomingly modified, and upon the subject of this becoming modification too much cannot be said.

Most dressmakers never consider the laughable result of Directoire lines upon the modern figure. They do not modify these lines to accommodate the figure of the modern woman.

Look at the gait of the modern woman. It is bold, energetic in movement, decisive in manner, usually with arms swinging and limbs moving in a jerky, more or less energetic and truly unbecomingly motion.

The modern woman with her modern gait is quite the most ridiculous looking object one can well imagine in a posh Directoire costume, designed especially for women of slow, languorous movements, may, down-like grace of motion and all these are, the contrary of energetic or rapid, which characterized the belles of the Directoire.

The modern woman, springing about with arms waving, springing in the Directoire gown, looks as sloppy and ill-governed as her lovely model of a bygone period, lashed charming and graceful. Therefore, if any be all women who would wear this type of dress, make yourselves all over in gait, manner and appearance or else modify the same.

It is easier to modify the gown than the dress color, which is old which is confined at the elbow by two wide bands above and below it. On each side of the waist, the Directoire gown is like a bow, and which is often stamped with an almost variable check in the waist. It is quite the sweetest thing in satin, and among the most women who aim to dress exclusively in the Directoire style, it is enjoying a great vogue.

One may fancy just how charmingly this soft fabric falls in the folds of Figure B. The front of this gown is a princess of the Directoire, draped at the waist and arms, and the skirt is a simple, straight, untraced waist. It is a simple, straight, untraced waist. It is a simple, straight, untraced waist.

Figure A illustrates a delightfully picturesque costume in the modified Directoire style, the Directoire skirt being given by the short-waisted, peculiar cut bodice and the long, flowing, clinging lines of the skirt.

This gown includes both Directoire and Empire features of the skirt which would dominate smart gowns.

A neat, wide giraffe drawn around the short bodice has its upper edge concealed by a inserted silk fringe that borders the shield-shaped fitted portion of the bodice.

The skirt is a wide design of the Directoire style, with a wide band of satin, which is not FIRENESS of texture and simplicity of design characterize most of the imported lingerie, but among the many designs shown none has yet appeared that is quite so simple and attractive as the French chemise here illustrated. Below the waist an inverted box pleat gives a comfortable amount of fulness, which falls gracefully to the lower edge, where a lace-edged ruffle gives a neat and attractive finish. The neck edge is finished by a row of narrow lace and ribbon-run beading. The drawers pattern is cut on exceptionally good lines. It is fitted by darts and provides sufficient fulness without unnecessary bulk, as a perfect fitting skirt is almost impossible if there are clumsy folds underneath. For 16 inches bust measure 3 1/4 yards of material 36 inches wide will be required for the chemise, and 4 1/2 yards for the drawers. The patterns for the chemise have been cut to sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure, while the patterns for the drawers are made up in sizes for 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. These two patterns, with full directions for making the garments at home, will be sent post paid by return mail on receipt of 10 cents. BOSTON AMERICAN, SUNDAY, JANUARY 27, 1907.

The Eternal, Unheeded Voice.

When, If Ever, Will Men Let Experience Teach Them? Almost Always the Warning Voice Sounds in Vain. The Millions Will Not Heed.

An important station in New York City's underground railway their echoes constantly a dull, monotonous sound. This sound impressed itself on the mind of the artist who handed a picture to the editor, saying, "Can you write an editorial about this?"

You see the picture here, and perhaps you will read the editorial. The man in the underground railway holds a megaphone at his mouth, and all day long as the crowds rush to the train, pushing and jostling, struggling to achieve our great world's problem, MOVEMENT, he shouts his warning, "Watch your step."

In the underground the trains and the platforms are often separated by a considerable space, occasionally a passenger puts his foot in and is ground to death.

For that reason the megaphone man stands shouting his ceaseless warning.

This man in the New York Subway is a feeble imitation of the old man, EXPERIENCE, who, for centuries, day and night, has stood shouting to humanity the same thing, "WATCH YOUR STEP."

But, in the subway station, there are victims in spite of all warnings. And so it is among human beings. Our lives, graveyards, gambling houses, morgues, Potter's Fields and insane asylums are filled with the human beings that have disregarded "Watch your step," the cry of old Experience. The road of life on which we must all walk, whether we will or no, is full of crevices, chasms and dangerous spots. From the bottom of every hole we hear voices of warning.

At every dangerous spot there is the cry of experience, the voice of the man who has fallen in and climbed out again, telling us to be careful.

How many men can say that they ever actually learned ANYTHING from the experience of others? A man may obey a command, he may live according to a wise habit contracted in early life, FOR THAT REASON GOOD HABITS ARE OF THE GREATEST VALUE TO HUMAN BEINGS. But how many have stopped or gone back or stepped to one side because some one cried, "I tried that and it cost me dear."

Among the Indians who preceded us in America there was respect for older people, the voice of experience was heeded. The old man knew the safe places to cross, he knew the paths that were safe, and the younger men listened. For that reason, among Indians, the old were honored, AS THEY ARE NOT AMONG WHITE MEN.

Our recklessness, our refusal to listen to others and learn from them, is partly due to the conditions of the change under which we live.

We have changed reverence for the old into contempt for old ideas. Whatever has been DONE IN ONE WAY we want to do in ANOTHER. This is good as regards machinery, it is good in industry, in chemistry, BUT IT IS NOT GOOD IN HUMAN LIFE, MORALS AND CONDUCT.

An old man sees a young man enter a foolish path. HE KNOWS by his own experience just what that young man is going through. He says to him truly, "When you reach my age you will bitterly regret what you are doing now. And when I tell you, as I DO, where this path will lead you, you will wonder later in life that you ever took it, that you did not listen. And then you, in your turn, will warn young men, AND THEY WILL REFUSE TO LISTEN TO YOU."

So it goes with all of us, the young refusing to listen and the old almost despairing of any results as they give the advice or tell what experience has taught them.

It is a condition not creditable to human intelligence. The stupidity of animals, the dog chasing his tail, the sheep jumping over a precipice to follow a leader, need not surprise us, for animals cannot TALK to each other.

Men CAN TALK, and this power to talk is the very greatest intellectual possession of our race. Through speech we are able to give to those younger the information we have acquired. And by WRITTEN speech we are able to get all the thought and all the knowledge of all thousands of millions that have lived behind us.

Real intelligent life was impossible until speech came on earth, and yet HOW LITTLE THE POWER OF SPEECH IS USED. How thoughtlessly we prove our primitive condition, the babyhood of our race, by the fact that, although we are able to speak, WE WILL NOT LEARN FROM ONE ANOTHER.

We write this editorial for two classes of readers, THE VERY OLD AND THE VERY YOUNG. We wish to make young men and women realize the arrogant, egotistical folly of one WHO REFUSES TO BE TAUGHT OR WARNED.

And we hope earnestly that the old, those that have gone through the mistakes, or that have avoided them, while studying them, will not lose courage entirely. We hope that they will continue to issue their warning, "Watch your step," and do their duty at least, even if their voices are not heeded.

Old men regret bitterly that they did not study enough, use their minds enough when the mind was elastic. These old disappointed men could better intimately the lives and the happiness of hundreds of thousands of others younger IF ONLY THEIR VOICES WERE HEADED.

Older women, who realize the foolishness, futility and disappointment in the mistaken aims and vanity of young girls, talk too often entirely in vain. How much they could do for the happiness of their families and of mothers in the future if they could, of THEIR OWN EXPERIENCE, convince young girls and young women that only a few GOOD THINGS are important in life.

Young boys and girls and young men and women should remember that, while it is usual to ignore the advice and experience of others, IT IS NOT INTELLIGENT TO DO SO. Men and women that have succeeded in this world HAVE BEEN THOSE THAT KNEW HOW TO LEARN FROM OTHERS. We absorb knowledge from our fellow beings, just as plants absorb nourishment from the earth.

We come into the world with a mind like a vacant sheet of paper, and all that we add to it we get from those about us, OR FROM THINGS TAKEN IN FROM BOOKS.

The process of GETTING KNOWLEDGE through experience and advice is THE important thing in all of our lives.

You men, you see the people in this picture walking along, paying no attention to the voice that is aimed at them. Try for YOUR OWN SAKE to be different from that. Let others, if they must, ignore the voice of age and teachings of experience, BUT YOU GET WHAT YOU CAN FROM BOTH. And when you are finding out from successful men and women the causes of their success, remember that the things

THAT THEY HAVE NOT DONE are at least as important as the things that THEY HAVE DONE.

Inside of us there are the voices of the whole animal kingdom, our ancestors far back. And all the various voices of greed and covetousness and vanity are urging us in different directions.

The successful human being is the one that has listened to the GOOD voice and refused to listen to the others.

We are all of us accustomed to the endless magazine articles in which great wealth tells how it got rich. And there are plenty of young men to go to the Sunday School of a sanctimonious young gentleman and hear him tell about things that he does not understand, BECAUSE HE REPRESENTS HUNDREDS OF MILLIONS OF DOLLARS.

In the mud and the experience OF A REALLY GOOD MAN OR WOMAN of mature years and sound thought you may learn more than from all the talking millionaires with their more or less foolish explanations of piled-up money.

How to spend time is one thing to know. How to protect your vitality by temperance is another thing to know. How to READ with INTELLIGENCE, so that you may build up a foundation of knowledge, and not gather together scattered, disconnected parts, is another thing to know.

How to make friends and to keep them, AND WHAT KIND OF FRIENDS TO MAKE, is another thing to know. It isn't the money a man has that makes him happy—although poverty, of course, is as deplorable as it is slavery.

It isn't millions of dollars that really give a man satisfaction in this life. To be RESPECTED, to have a mind well equipped, to know what the world is doing, having an intelligent, comprehensive interest in the great events, those are some of the things worth while.

And best worth while of all IS THE RESPECT OF OTHER MEN, AND ESPECIALLY THE GRATITUDE OF OTHER MEN, IF YOU CAN EARN IT BY UNSELFISH WORK.

Let experience teach you. Listen to those that are old, and respected to-day.

Listen to those that died long ago, whose voices are heard in their books and in the stories of their lives.

Develop in your minds the faculty lacking to so many of us, THAT OF ABSTRACTING KNOWLEDGE AND HAPPINESS IN LIFE FROM THE EXPERIENCE AND THE MISTAKES OF OTHERS.

1,000 PER CENT. INCREASE IN 8 YEARS IN WEST SOMERVILLE REAL ESTATE

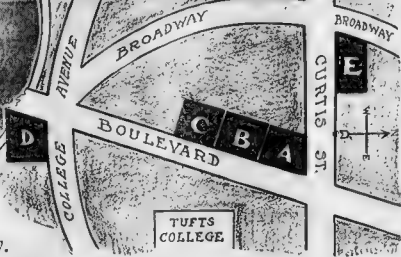

Wonderful Advance in Land Values Points Significant Lesson to Wide-Awake Investors.

WEST SOMERVILLE—Twenty-five years ago worth $500. This year its assessed valuation is sixteen times the original purchase price. These are no isolated instances of the bonanza returns that have followed the rapid advancement in West Somerville property before it had been developed. Now

Manicured roads, broad avenues and well lighted streets now intersect the fields where sheep and cattle used to graze. West Somerville is today a thriving section of comfortable houses, where the home builder is always busy and the real estate dealer works overtime.

With the withering of the fields and the blossoming of dwelling houses, stores, churches, and up-to-date public schools, building land in this city has risen in value at a rate unparalleled in modern real estate history.

For instance, eight years ago a good building lot in the town owned by Holland Curtis cost $100. It was sold for $1,000. Today its market value is just $2,200. The adjoining lot was also bought for $100 eight years ago. In 1903 it was estate values have jumped proportionately all along the line. And what have been the compelling causes of this remarkable rise in values? Primarily, freer transportation facilities backed by good government and a low tax rate.

Ten years ago there were no street cars in West Somerville. The cars from Boston travelled no farther than where they now stop at the corner of Meacham St. and Broadway. Today the street cars travel through the heart of West Somerville, and the ride from Boston to the corner of Meacham St. and Broadway is now only a few minutes. In the old days the ride from Boston to the corner of Meacham St. and Broadway was a half day. Today the same ground is covered in twenty minutes.

In contrast, West Somerville land values as they were and as they are, are so startling as to be almost unbelievable. In the early sixties, Simpson, who was one of the largest landowners in that town, committed suicide because he was unable to convert a portion of his holdings

How West Somerville Realty Values Have Jumped in 8 Years

This figure shows the increase in West Somerville real estate values from 1899 to 1907, and from that year to the present one. The parcels referred to are indicated on the accompanying map.

NINE DEAD, 9 MISSING, 12 HURT IN $1,500,000 MILL FIRE AT DOVER.

Five Hundred Men, Women and Children In Panic As Flames Bar Exits—Scores Saved
By Wild Leaps to Newly Fallen Snow.

DOVER, N. H., Jan. 26.—One of the most destructive and picturesque fires that ever visited the city of Dover, to-day destroyed mill No. 1 of the Cocheco Manufacturing Company, causing a loss of $1,500,000, and blotted out the lives of at least nine persons. A score of employees were injured in the fierce panic which followed the outbreak of the fire.

The Dead.
Four unidentified bodies, one thought to be that of Dominick Caspore, aged eighteen years. Fifteen bodies believed to be still in the ruins.

The Missing.
COSGROVE, JOHN, fifteen years.
NESTER, JOHN, seventeen years, No. 7 Bonnett street.
REDDON, JOHN, fifteen years, Forest street, corner of Essex.
ELDRIDGE, CONSTANCE ANNE, seventeen years, No. 10 Water street.
NICOLPULOS, JOHN, seventeen years, No. 10 Water street.
KROSKERN, JOHN, mule spinner, aged seventeen, No. 34 Fourth street.
BARROW, ALFRED, "doffer," aged eighteen, No. 4 Hanson street.
Four Greeks whose names cannot be learned.

The Injured.
TURNER, WILLIAM, mule spinner, No. 240 Central avenue, his fractured in several places. City Hospital.
BLANKS, THEODORE, spinner, No. 7 Young street; ligament right ankle wrenched loose, forehead bruised.
BARGLOM, ALFRED, No. 4 Portland street; left wrist dislocated, right hand and both feet burned.
LARKEN, EDWARD, mule spinner, aged forty-five years, married, Court street; leg broken in jumping to safety.
HESTER, BENJAMIN, married, aged forty years, No. 9 Hanson street; right knee and ankle fractured and mangled.
GARDNER, ARTHUR, four-year-old boy, aged twenty years, Young street; hair burned from head, body badly scorched.
TURNER, JOHN, aged forty-five years, widower, Main street; badly burned about face and hands.
CONNORS, JAMES, aged forty-five years, widower, by smoke and rescued by firemen.

Firemen Saved from Peril
The fire, which had been partially subdued in the afternoon, broke out again with redoubled fury, attacking the first two floors of the five-story mill, and at mid-night it was still burning with great fury. With crumbling blazing walls the firemen were driven back and compelled to fight the flames from a great distance. The other four mills of the concern, however, have been saved from destruction, and the flames are now confined to the mill No. 1.

The firemen, who were fighting the blaze from the third floor of one of the towers in the mill, were hemmed in, the flames eating their way up narrow stairs of the tower and threatening their destruction. They called loudly for help and were rescued when ladders were raised.

Madly Fought to Escape.
Panic, horrible, passing the power of description, followed the shriek of destruction. Men, women and children, who first saw the fire, fled in a mad race for the exits. The firemen, who were fighting the blaze from the third floor of one of the towers in the mill, were hemmed in, the flames eating their way up narrow stairs of the tower and threatening their destruction. They called loudly for help and were rescued when ladders were raised.

New Sews Sings Scores.
An enthusiastic fire escape, which reached up but twenty-five feet to the rear of the factory to the second floor only, was not used in the mad race of the firemen.

Week's Best Snapshot of Evelyn Thaw, Entering Cab from Court

Rumor Sweeps New York That Delmas Threatens to Withdraw from Case If Actress Does Not Quit Courtroom.

COUNTESS IN ANGER, MAY LEAVE BROTHER AND GO HOME

District-Attorney Jerome Is to Put Evelyn Nesbit Thaw on Stand In Fight to Convict Her Husband.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Harry Thaw is troubled to-night in his Tombs cell for fear that dissensions among the women in his family may destroy his best chances of acquittal on the charge of committing murder in the first degree when he killed Stanford White.

The rumor is persistent and not to be downed by denials by the attorneys for the defence that the Thaw women are conducting a feud and that so great is their dislike for Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, the prisoner's young wife, and Miss May McKenzie of Boston, her closest friend, that the Countess of Yarmouth is on the point of sailing for her home in England. The public opinion is to the effect that there must be much in these stories of dissension to cause the Thaw lawyers to make such a lengthy and official denials as they sent forth to-night.

Young Mrs. Thaw is on the verge of breaking down with an attack of hysteria, it is said, and if she is needed by the defence as the strongest witness, may not be available in the fight to save his life through ill health at the critical moment.

Jerome May Call Wife as First Witness.

District Attorney Jerome contemplates, as an astonishing strategic move in the trial of Harry K. Thaw, upon the indictment charging him with murder in the first degree, the calling of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, the wife of the defendant, as the first witness for the State.

Many conferences have been held by Mr. Jerome, and his assistants who are familiar with the details of the case, as to the advisability of calling the defendant's wife. While it is not absolutely settled that this course will be followed, it is expected that when the twelve good men and true are selected, the first words the District Attorney utters will be:

"Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, take the stand!"

It has been forgotten by almost everybody that Evelyn Nesbit was a witness before the Grand Jury which indicted Thaw for murder in the first degree and the records officers in the Court of General Sessions, show that she was a witness called to testify against her husband.

Harridge Promises Sensation in Trial.

While it is understood that the defence will be the "unwritten law," Clifford W. Harridge, chief of the Thaw attorneys, would not confirm or deny. But he made one startling statement to-night.

"I shall have nothing to say about our defence until it is time to present it in court. Then we shall spring a surprise in the shape of a point that has never before been used in a capital case."

The calm tenacity of the Thaw lawyers and the prisoner himself has led many to believe that the defence has evidence in the latter's behalf that will stop the prosecution.

But the circumstance which worries the defence most at this time is the circumstance that there is no longer faith that the Thaw women will present an undivided front in his behalf until the bitter end.

Family Rupture Over May McKenzie.

The family rupture is attributed by rumor chiefs to the Countess of Yarmouth, who crossed the sea to sustain her aged mother and comfort her accused brother through the fearful ordeal of a trial for life. It is said that she had forced herself into the favor of Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, who is blamed as the cause of the tragedy, but that the presence of Miss McKenzie, allured by the prospect of a large fortune, had caused the rupture.

Both the prosecution and the defence sought to establish the point as to Thaw's sanity. Such eminent alienists as Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton, Dr. Carlos F. MacDonald, Dr. Austin Flint and Dr. William Mahan were sent to the witness stand.

MELBA IN FINE FORM GETS BIG OVATION AT SYMPHONY

Melodious and "Popular" Program Marred by a Discordant Fantasy Based on a Walt Whitman Poem.

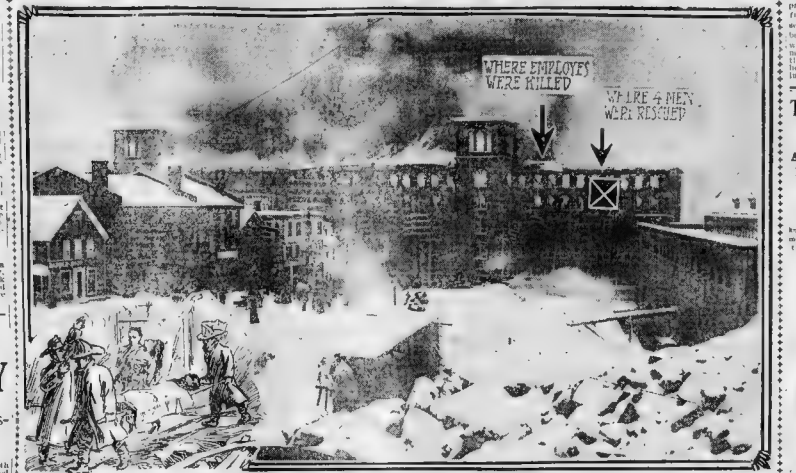

Mrs. Melba gave a most successful performance at the Boston Symphony on Sunday evening. Her singing was melodious and popular, and she received a big ovation from the audience. The program was marred by a discordant fantasy based on a Walt Whitman poem. The audience was disappointed by this piece, but they were very much impressed by Mrs. Melba's performance. She sang several popular songs, and her voice was in fine form throughout the evening.

Dainty in Mozart. Mrs. Melba's performance of Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro" was dainty and elegant. She played the piano part with skill and grace, and her singing was in perfect harmony with the piano. The audience was very much impressed by her performance, and she received a big ovation at the end of the piece. Her performance was a model of dainty and elegance, and it was a great pleasure to hear her sing.

Discordant Straining for Effect. The discordant straining for effect in the fantasy was a great disappointment to the audience. The piece was based on a Walt Whitman poem, and it was supposed to be a tribute to the poet. However, the music was so discordant and straining that it was impossible to hear the words of the poem. The audience was very much disappointed by this piece, and they were very much impressed by Mrs. Melba's performance.

The Fairs Mens Go SUIT

We wish to thank the people of Boston for their kind response to our appeal for their help in driving the fakirs in our line out of this city. We also wish to impress upon everybody that every garment we sell during this crusade we lose money on, but we are in this fight to a finish, and every dollar that we lose now we expect to get back double later.

SIX LITTLE TAILORS. New Building 177-179 Washington St. New Building

Since starting this crusade against the fake tailoring concerns, the money amount of our business has increased over six times that of any corresponding period of the year. Now from whom are we taking this additional business? Surely not from the reputable tailors who always try to give customers a square deal—but from the fakirs, who promise the Earth and give what's left after taking the whole of it.

THE wonderful thing about the Edison Phonograph as an entertainer is that it gives you your kind of amusement—your kind of music. That's because it gives any kind. The man who likes old-fashioned ballads is apt to think, because he has never heard the Edison sing a ballad, that it is a rag-time instrument.

You must hear the Edison Phonograph sing or play the kind of music you like. Then you will know. It is very easy to hear the Edison. There is at least one store in every town where you can hear it free, or where they will gladly show it to you. If you cannot find that store in this town, write to us and let us tell you.

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 26.—After having given promise of one of the most sensational romantic divorce cases that have ever reached the courts of this State by seeking the annulment of a decree which she declared was fraudulently obtained by her late husband, Benjamin Estes, Mrs. Henrietta Estes of Washington today effected a settlement, and will secure part of the property for which she was fighting.

By an agreement reached at a meeting of attorneys, Mrs. Estes and her son are to receive substantial sums of money from the personal holder of the Estes estate, Nathaniel P. Estes of San Francisco. The divorce annulment case thus drops, and the contest over the estate is settled separately.

Perjury Charge Unsettled.
The sudden and unexpected settlement has given rise to the question of whether Benjamin Estes, one of Pull River's wealthiest mill owners, was a victim of a fraud, or a man who had been deceived by his wife. The trial of the case would have brought out a sensational and romantic story.

Stunning Anti-Corporation Decision

Complaint.

THE Massachusetts Railroad Commission delivered a straightforward blow yesterday against corporation opposition by ruling that, if a passenger in a trolley car cannot find a seat, he should be provided with standing room.

This cheerful intelligence is characteristic of the determined attitude which the authorities are now taking to assist the Common People in a fight for their rights.

The decision results from a complaint made by the public. It was based on the fact that the corporation had been operating its cars in a way that was dangerous to the public.

To Our Stockholders

Golden Nevada is on the crest of a great wave of prosperity, which, starting a few years back has been constantly advancing and growing until in 1908 the whole country is sitting up and taking notice.

What of 1909?

As it appears to me to-day all of the small waves of 1901

in Dividends

That is what The Wellington Association has paid in dividends since January, 1904.

At $66.18 paid in November last

HOW ABOUT 1907?

The Association has never failed to pay a regular quarterly dividend since January, 1904. The outlook for 1907 is better than

"HILLID Gave Harriet herself."

It was a cold, frosty day in the month of January. The sun shone brightly in the sky, but the wind was cold and the ground was covered with a thin layer of snow. The people were walking in the streets, some wearing heavy coats and hats, and some wearing light clothing. The children were playing in the snow, and the dogs were running and barking. Piles

Cured Quickly and Painlessly—No Risk, No Danger.

A Free Trial Package to Convince Sent by Mail to All Who Write.

Common sense is just as necessary (even more so) in medicine as in business or the affairs of every day life. People are getting to know more than they used to. Not so long ago it was the fashion to make all sorts of claims for a medicine, and wind up by asking the reader to go to a drug store and buy a bottle. People would stand for that kind of thing when they want proof— tangible, proof. They want to try the remedy first, and if they find it does the work claimed they will be glad enough to go and buy it.

That is why we say to every person suffering from piles or any form of rectal disease, send us your name and we will gladly send you a free trial package. For we know what the result will be. After using the trial you will hurry to your nearest drugstore and get a 60c. box of Pile Cure. You will find that it is one of the most wonderful relief and cures for Piles ever known.

"Please excuse my delay in writing to you sooner in regard to what your trial you will hurry to your nearest drugstore and get a 60c. box of Pile Cure. You will find that it is one of the most wonderful relief and cures for Piles ever known."

"I have been suffering from piles for several years. I have tried many remedies, but nothing has helped me. I have heard of your Pile Cure, and I have decided to try it. DR. JULIAN P. THOMAS, will DIAGNOSE your case FREE! Science has progressed so far that you do not have to travel thousands of miles or spend large sums of money to find out what ails you; all you have to do is fill out his diagnosis sheet and he will tell you exactly your condition, thus enabling you to treat yourself, or to know whether the treatment you have been taking was suited to your case or not.

America's Best Known Food Specialist,

Dr. Thomas finds that one-half of the case depends upon a correct diagnosis and all CHRONIC CASES are the result of MISTAKEN DIAGNOSIS.

He also finds by his enormous experience that many people with fine organizations are slowly dying from chronic starvation because they do not supply their body with food suited to their diagnosed condition. The fact is, many people are consuming food ideally suited to their neighbor's condition but poisonous to their own. A physician of limited experience cannot diagnose a case until the patient is dead and a post-mortem has been performed. Others, of a little more experience, diagnose a case a few hours before the patient's death. A mechanic who would attempt to repair a machine before he finds out what was the matter with it would be considered a fool. No man of sense would force a machine to run after he knew it was broken. Yet thousands of persons are suffering from chronic disorder, go through life without knowing their exact physical condition.

Dr. Thomas prefers not to diagnose the cases of persons who are confused by the many remedies and cases such as rheumatism, stasis, articular rheumatism, diabetes, etc., such cases have been neglected too long.

Remember the Diagnosis is FREE.

HAILET & DAVIS

SALE OF PIANO MANUFACTURERS

Beginning Monday at 8.30 A.M.

This sale is characteristic of a great piano manufacturing concern, conducting an enormous retail business. The sale of used pianos has become an all-important factor in our business.

The universal popularity of our player-pianos and new style uprights was signally demonstrated during the Holiday season, and the number of instruments taken in exchange far surpasses that of any previous season.

For several weeks this stock has been in the hands of our expert repairers. Many of the instruments have been out on rent in special concert work, and are practically new and called for no repairs, while others have been thoroughly overhauled and regulated and are reduced accordingly.

It is necessary that these pianos find homes quickly, as much valuable space has been devoted in our retail warehouses to their display, and our regular shipments are arriving every day from our factories as well as from the other manufacturers whom we represent. Prices are therefore secondary to sales at this offering.

The display is now complete, and represents the most impressive stock of fine guaranteed bargains ever shown here.

NEARLY EVERY INSTRUMENT WORTH DOUBLE THE ASKING PRICE

The prices are low enough to convince anyone that now is the time to buy. If you need a piano, buy one of these and secure the bargain of a lifetime. Small monthly payments may be arranged.

The public response to a Hallet & Davis special sale is always prompt and significant, and it is safe to say that this sale will create widespread interest, and that the stock will go quickly.

The warehouses will be open every evening this week to accommodate the busy man. Hereafter is a partial list of bargains. Look it over carefully and then come in and examine the stock. You will find everything as advertised.
